Newsletter autumn issue-014

EDITORIAL:

Welcome to this Autumn Newsletter which, very nearly, was going to be written in my hospital bed

But more of that later. I hope that everyone has had as pleasant and enjoyable Summer as our typical English Summer would allow.

“Travelling with an Ileostomy” is a subject close to my heart and I shall cover more of this inside.

Personally, Val and I, since the last newsletter, have travelled to Cornwall, Somerset, Norfolk, Pembrokeshire and Dorset... but not in the same two weeks! And the year still has many more travelling weeks left!

We have also attended a couple of Open Days for Salts-Trafford Ski centre, and Bury Stoma care - and also Salford at Eccles Masonic.. More information inside on future Open Days planned by Dansac, etc. Other news this last period: I have been selected to trial a new batch of pouches - produced by Welland - in which I have been requested to fill a multi-question report on the performance of the filter on this pouch - following a new design. This is my second trial of this pouch and Welland take on board trialists comments - go back to the drawing board - and send out a new re-trial.

As new products become available - as can be seen from the advertising in your IA Journal - why not go ahead and send for a sample. If you are experiencing problems with your current appliance and other extras, such as security tapes, adhesive remover, etc, then try other products that are available. Remember once tried and found satisfactory, or even better than your current products, then note the part number/control number of the item and let your supplier know of this item. It can be easily added to your current prescription and any finished items removed.

Regards....

.A Cautionary Tale Of Dehydration_

Dehydration Occurs when the amount of water leaving the body is greater than the amount being taken in. Routinely, we lose liquid/water from our body by sweating, urination and breath.

(This is my personal story; Ed.)

It is usual to end a story with a moral - a thoughtful reasoning of events. Unusually, I am going to start this account with a Moral, hence:

Never Say "It could never happen to Me"

You will remember over a year ago My wife and I embarked on a touring holiday of this fair land of ours, in our newly aquired Motorhome 'Daisy'. Now - after covering over 8000 miles of this green and pleasant land and coming to an end of a South coast trip last month we were looking forward to planning our next twelve months.. It hadn't been brilliant weather but we had played with our great grandchildren on Pembrokeshire's beaches and after a short stay at our son's house in Blandford, Wiltshire we were enjoying a lunchtime break. Without any warning I sudenly suffered a severe bout of uncontrollable shivering and a temperature drop. With the help of a warm blanket and a rest my temperature gradually settled - so we stayed the night and planned to return to Manchester the following day. After a fitful night's sleep I thought it better to drive home and make a n appointment with my local surgery.

At home I was unable to get an appointment and my condition was worsening. Loss of appetite and a noticeable loss of weight. My stoma output was liquid.! Using the local NHS Nurse assistance my wife called for an ambulance and a trip to A&E at our local hospital. Thinking back over the previous holiday I couldn't recall ever feeling thirsty or dehydrated due to not taking in liquid. Much tea, water,occasional wine, etc. had been my normal intake; nor had the weather been exceptionally hot and sunny -(as we all know - this summer!).

Following a triage inspection I was admitted to a ward to await a further Doctor's diagnosis. Thiscame eventually from blood tests and an x-ray that I had suffered a severe dehydration and that my kidneys were under stress. This condition was exacerated by the fact that I was an ileostomist and had lost more than a normal amount of fluids. I was immediately placed on a 4-litre saline drip to replace the body fluids followed- a couple of days later by a litre magnesium drip - an electrolyte replacement.

I was kept under observation by a team of Gastrological experts and further tests were carried out - including more blood tests (to indicate stability of my kidneys) and a trip through the CT scanner-(Computerised Tomogrgraphy) - a form of X-ray that produces pictures of cross-sections of an area of the body. After a total of 8 nights in hospital - and a final visit from a Consultant - Iwas given a final diagnosis of dehydration combined with an bowel (small intestine) - virus.

Not a pleasant experience but one which I didn't see coming nor had any noticeable change of lifestyle to bring this condition to my doorstep.

Be aware of your liquid intake- Ed.
